

U. S. Breaks Diplomatic Relations With Germany

Washington, Feb., 3.—Diplomatic relations with Germany have been broken. Count Von Bernstorff has been handed his passports, and Ambassador Gerard has been ordered from Berlin. Notice of the break is to be outlined in a detailed address, which President Wilson delivered at a joint session of Congress at two this afternoon. In spite of the fact that this became known definitely, officials at the White House and state department would not discuss the situation in any form.

UNITED STATES STANDS ON BRINK OF WAR; PRESIDENT WILSON GOES BEFORE CONGRESS

CONGRESS CHEERS AS WILSON MAKES KNOWN HIS STAND

Washington, Feb. 3.—The severance of diplomatic relations with Germany was formally announced to the country and the world by President Wilson at a joint session of congress today at two o'clock.

The United States now stands on the verge of war with all the historic precedents of centuries pressing it forward.

Everently invoking the guidance of Almighty God in the steps he has taken, President Wilson detailed to congress why the United States could not continue relations with a warring power, which repeatedly invades its sacred rights and takes the lives of its citizens.

Calm, with a sense of right in what may prove the most somber moment of American history the president stood in the historic hall in the house of representatives, and with senators and representatives before him spoke the words which may carry the country into the world conflict not for power, only for law and humanity.

Silent and attentive, the grim company of the nation's lawmakers, listened with attention while President Wilson told of America's course in the now unsuccessful diplomatic struggle to dissuade Germany from her campaign of ruthlessness.

The president declared that "notwithstanding this unexpected action of the German government, this suddenly and deeply explicable renunciation of promises given this government," he refused to believe that "it is the intention of the German authorities to do in fact what they have earned us they feel at liberty to do."

"We wish to serve no selfish ends," the president stated. "We seek merely to stand true alike in thought and in action to the inalienable principles of our people. . . . Seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and justice, and an unmolested life. These are the principles of peace, not war. God grant that we may not be challenged to defend them by acts of willful injustice on the part of the government of Germany."

In concluding his address President Wilson declared that if overt acts are forthcoming, he will again come before congress to ask authority "to use any means that may be necessary for protection of our seamen and our people."

All neutral governments, he believed, will take the same course. While the president was addressing congress, Law Adviser Woolsey of the state department, was at the German embassy delivering to Count Von Bernstorff passports for the ambassador, his wife, the embassy staff and his son, which comprises more than 100 persons. A note believed to be substantially the same as the president addressed to congress, was included.

There was an unusual attendance of diplomats to hear the president's address. Practically all South Americans were present and many other neutrals impressed with the significance of the president's action for their own country came to listen to the history-making address. The gravity of the occasion was further pictured by the presence of the justices of the supreme court upon the floor. Members of the cabinet also were present.

As usual, a committee representing both houses escorted the president to the speaker's dais.

The assemblage arose as he entered the chamber. Then it burst into cheering, as the president, his face set and without the suggestion of a smile, bowed and began reading his address very slowly. There was tense silence in the great room as he proceeded outlining first negotiations with Germany, her pledges to the United States after the destruction of the passenger steamer Sussex and naval orders of Germany declaring for unrestricted submarine warfare after February 1.

The silence deepened as the president continued. Then the assemblage burst into applause, when the president declared he had directed the secretary of state to announce to "His Excellency, the German Ambassador, that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German empire are severed."

There were cheers on both sides of the chamber, republicans and democrats joining in the demonstration. Again the congress and galleries cheered when the president declared he would not regard obligations and intend to destroy American ships and take the lives of American citizens.

Louder and more widespread cheering greeted the announcement, that the president would come to congress again to ask authority "to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people," should "American ships and

Declarations Concerning U-Boat War By Germany and United States

Ultimatum of United States to Germany, April 19, 1916:
It is the purpose of the imperial government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity. The government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course that it can pursue. Unless the imperial government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present method of submarine warfare against passenger and freight carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether.

Germany's new declaration of unrestricted war:
The imperial government is forced to do away with the restrictions which, until now, it has imposed upon the use of its fighting means on the seas. Neutral ships plying within the barrel zones do so at their own risk.

Germany's abandonment of relentless submarine policy in reply to the United States, May 4, 1916:
The German government notifies the United States that the German navy forces have received the following orders:
"In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and destruction of merchant vessels, recognized by international law, and without the area declared as a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives, unless these ships attempt to escape or offer resistance."

American lives be sacrificed by German naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable under standing of international law and obvious dictates of humanity."

When the president concluded, congress rose again and cheered, and remained standing, while the president left the chamber. The senate returned immediately to its own wing of the capital, justices went to the supreme court, and cabinet officials filed out. The house resumed its routine work as though nothing unusual or disturbing had occurred.

The president hurried back to the White House. Before leaving he went to Speaker Clark's office with the committee of senators and representatives who accompanied him and each shook hands with him.

A few minutes after Secretary Baker went into conference with the president at the White House, Secretary Daniels arrived. Precautionary measures to be taken were under discussion.

PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES TO BE TAKEN WERE UNDER DISCUSSION.

Paris, Feb. 3.—Rear Admiral De Guoy, retired, of the French navy, paid a tribute to the officers and men of the navy in an interview upon the submarine issue, which he gave today to a correspondent of the Associated Press.

"Should Germany's new policy," said the admiral, "bring the United States into the European conflict, American sailors may be depended upon to give a good account of themselves in fighting the enemy which is now on the other side of the Atlantic, or that may get there."

Admiral DeGuoy has made a life study of French naval strategy and tactics, with reference to Germany and is one of the best authorities on that subject. Some of his ideas long rejected by the French navy, are now gaining favor, notably in regard to more comprehensive action against submarine bases.

SUBMARINE WARFARE HAS COST THE LIVES OF 200 AMERICANS

Washington, Feb. 3.—Two hundred Americans at least, probably more, have gone to their death through German and Austrian submarine operations.

Most of the Americans lost were traveling on unarmed merchant ships, and under practices of international law and humanity believed themselves secure. More than 2,000 citizens of other nationalities lost their lives in the same attack which cost the lives of Americans, but they composed only a part of the toll of life taken by submarine warfare.

The ships lost on which the Americans met death are only a fraction of the numbers sent to the bottom by torpedoes, most of them without warning. The changes which involve the United States and Germany are primarily those in which American lives were lost or endangered.

CHARGES AIMED AT HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Macdonald, Wis., Feb. 3.—P. E. Lawson, of Macdonald, who charges that the work of the Wisconsin Historical society has been diverted from its original purpose in a second letter to Assemblyman Charles F. Kurl of Oshkosh, says that he wants to appear before a committee of the legislature and present the facts. Dr. H. H. Qualie, superintendent of the Wisconsin Historical society, in a letter made public yesterday, characterizes Mr. Lawson's first letter as "chiefly erroneous."

Lawson comes right back with a demand that he be permitted to appear before a committee of the legislature in the presence of Superintendent Qualie and give the facts to back up his statement. Assemblyman Kurl will arrange for a committee hearing at which both men may present the facts.

FIRE RAGES WHEN HYDRANTS FREEZE

Green Bay, Feb. 3.—Frozen hydrants were responsible for the heaviest fire loss in years in Green Bay. Firemen spent two hours in thawing out hydrants last night, while the warehouse of the Wm. Larson Canning company and residence of D. W. Hudson burned, causing a loss estimated at $60,000.

Chief John Sweeney said the fire was caused by frozen hydrants which were frozen so solidly that the firemen suffered frost-bitten cheeks, noses and hands.

HALFBREED MUSHER WINS BIG DOG RACE

St. Paul, Feb. 3.—Albert Campbell, the Creek half-breed of Lepas, Manitoba, won the 500-2 mile dog race from Winnipeg to Eau Claire, crossing the finishing line in Como Park here today at 12:44 p. m.

The other leaders followed the winner closely. Bill Grayson coming in second, Joe McCall third and Gabriel Campbell, brother of the winner, fourth.

PRECEDENTS INDICATE A SURE BREAK

RECALLING OF AMBASSADOR GERARD AND HANDING BERNSTORFF HIS PASSPORTS POINT TO WARLIKE MOVE.

IS BACKED BY NATION

President's Course of Action Taken After Calm Deliberation As to Seriousness of Issues Involved.

Washington, Feb. 3.—Diplomatic relations with Germany have been broken off. President Wilson in a personal address to a joint session of congress at two this afternoon, announced the American government's answer to Germany's declaration of ruthless submarine warfare.

Ambassador Gerard has been instructed to ask the German foreign office for his passports. Passports have been sent to Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington.

Confident that the sentiment of the entire country is behind him and assured of the united support of congress, President Wilson, after his conference Friday with the cabinet and senators, came to the conclusion that there was only one course for the United States to pursue.

Breaking of the relations brings the United States to the verge of war. Never in the history of the world have two first-class powers severed their diplomatic relations without hostility following.

President Wilson in taking the momentous steps has counted the consequences carefully as have all his advisors.

Germany, all her officials have openly said, has counted the cost of a break with the United States and was prepared to pay in the hope of shortening the war.

When the president returned from the capital last night, he apparently had made up his mind that nothing remained but breaking off relations. That about he began preparing the address which he was to deliver to congress.

Spain will take over the diplomatic interests of the United States in Berlin and the Swiss legation those of Germany in the United States.

Precautions Taken.
Immediately after the machinery of the government was set in motion to safeguard the national interests and further prepare the country for the unprecedented and momentous situation in which it now finds itself.

Secretary Daniels issued an order barring all but officers and men from naval yards, ships and stations. Orders to safeguard the ports were issued through the treasury department to customs collectors and the coast guard service. Not unimpaired of the possibility of disturbances by German sympathizers officials say steps have been taken to meet the situation.

Had Conference.
Just at the time when the decision to break relations with Germany was made, Secretary Daniels went over to the White House and had a conference with the President. He would go no further than the brief announcement, that the President would address a joint session this afternoon.

The United States has formally demanded of Germany the speedy release of Americans taken prisoners on ships by the raiders in the south Atlantic.

In all there were sixty-four Americans taken from the steamers Mount Temple, Georgia, and Voltair. Sixty of the prisoners are confined in the prison camp at Duellman in West Falm.

Five Hundred Million.
Senator Thomas introduced an amendment to the house revenue bill proposing an issue of $500,000,000 non-interest bearing treasury notes to put the nation in a state of naval and military preparedness.

War if Germany Dares to Sink One U. S. Vessel

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, Feb. 3.—Chairman Flood of the house foreign affairs committee, evidently expected the chances of avoiding war were remote. "If an American ship is sunk by a German submarine," he said, "it would be followed by a declaration of war by congress."

break with Austria-Hungary could not be learned definitely. Inasmuch as Austria is understood to have endorsed the action of Germany, however, this action is expected to follow, if it has not already been taken.

Congress Ready.
At the capital the news of the president's decision came like a thunder-clap. Everywhere there were expressions of support and approbation. Congressmen were deeply moved by the climax. One of the first to hear of the move was Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, republican, of the foreign relations committee.

"Can I not believe the president would do it. Now we can better see to it that our marines prevent the dismantling of any more German ships in our harbors."

President Marshall, who was notified to arrange for the joint session of congress, said:

"It is to be hoped that this necessary break will drag the United States into the war. There are limits, however, to endure beyond which no self respecting nation can go."

Senator Tillman, chairman of the senate naval committee said:

"I was in favor when I heard of the note first, of telling Mr. Bernstorff to pack up his duds and go home to his barbarians."

Bernstorff Deeply Moved.
Count Von Bernstorff apparently was much affected. When the information of severance of relations came to him, his eyes moistened and he said to a correspondent of the Associated Press:

"I'm so sorry. However, I expected it. There was nothing else left for the United States to do. I wonder how I am to get home."

U-BOATS ARE ACTIVE; NEUTRAL SHIPS SUNK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Madrid, Spain, Feb. 3.—The Spanish steamship Butron and a Greek steamship have been torpedoed and sunk by the German submarine U-67. Two Spaniards were drowned. The sinking of the Butron, the rest of the crews of both vessels were landed.

Ten Were Drowned.
London, Feb. 3.—Ten members of the crew of the British steamer Esouite, previously reported sunk, were drowned. Lloyd's shipping agency announced today. The captain and two men of the crew have been landed.

Many Killed.
Petrograd, Feb. 3.—An explosion occurred on board an ice-breaker while the vessel was unloading at Archangel, according to an official announcement issued today. It is feared that about thirty persons lost their lives. 344 persons were injured, fifty-nine of them severely. The fire spread to various parts of the wharf and damaged a number of buildings.

MONTREAL CHEERS DIPLOMATIC BREAK

Montreal, Feb. 3.—The publication in extra editions of the news of the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany created tremendous excitement here.

The streets in the business section of the city were thronged with people, while bulletin boards attracted crowds that blocked traffic.

Cheers for President Wilson and the United States were given at intervals by the crowd.

Trans-Atlantic Steamers Scheduled to Sail Today, Leave Despite Crisis—Police Guard Docks and Wharves.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, February 3.—Word reached the police today that coincident with the publication of the news of the rupture with Germany, the Austrian freighter, Himalaya, which has been lying in Newark Bay, an estuary of New York harbor, has been put out of commission. The report had that the disson-head and other parts of her engines had been smashed by crow-bars and axes.

Receipt here of news of the rupture with Germany spurred the police to take precautionary measures already mapped out in anticipation of emergency. Police were ordered to all places "likely to be attacked," including the water supply and entrance to great bridges over the East River.

Men were also detailed to guard foreign consulates, particularly those of Germany and Austria-Hungary. Acting Commissioner Godley explained that these measures were all precautionary. He said no serious trouble was expected.

New York, Feb. 3.—The first passenger steamer to leave this port since the declaration of the new German blockade, are booked to sail today. They are the Carmania of the Cunard line, the Adriatic of the White Star line and the St. Louis of the American line.

The American line announced there would be no change in their sailing plans.

Expected Delay.
It was expected that the American liner would remain at her dock owing to the opinion expressed by Secretary Lansing of the state department that European sailings of all ships flying the American flag should be postponed, if the government decision in the recent international crisis.

Few Cancellations.
Passage on the St. Louis has been booked by 280 persons, and only fifteen cancellations have been received up to this morning. A large number of these passengers are American citizens. The Carmania will carry about twenty passengers. The Adriatic has seventeen passengers in her first cabin, nine in her second, and seven in the third.

Increased Guard.
The New York harbor guard has increased its vigilance. Collector of Customs Malone now has 1,200 men assigned to this duty. In addition to co-operation of harbor destroyers stationed at the Narrows, he has under his command the harbor police boat and four tugs of coast guard cutter service.

Delays One Day.
The International Mercantile Marine announced today the postponement of the sailing of the American Line steamship St. Louis, from noon today until noon Sunday, "on account of a shortage of steam coal."

Returns to Port.
Amsterdam, via London, Feb. 3. The Handelsblad said that the Holland-American liner New Amsterdam, which was on her way to America and has been recalled by wireless, arrived off the Hook of Holland this morning.

LIFE IN THE NAVY DESCRIBED BY AN OLD EDGERTON BOY
Tells of Period of Training and of Deep Sea Cruising Aboard the Vermont.
In a letter written aboard the U. S. S. Vermont, stationed at Portland, Maine, Edgerton boy, a former Edgerton boy, describes his experiences in a year of life as a sailor and tells of the training through which all recruits are put before they are given berth aboard a ship.
Edgerton enlisted in the navy at Milwaukee in December, 1915, and was sent at once to the Navy Training Station at Great Lakes, Illinois. In the station of training is one calculated to prepare anyone for the strict discipline of the battleship and for the rigors of sea service. After preliminary examinations, the incoming recruits are assigned to one of the four barracks for a period of four weeks, this being the time required for medical treatment to develop if they are predisposed to any disease. In the barracks, the "rookie" is assigned to a barracks for a period of four weeks, this being the time required for medical treatment to develop if they are predisposed to any disease. In the barracks, the new men are transferred to another barracks, where the real training is begun.
A mere glance at the daily routine of the barracks is enough to show "what life is like."

3:30 to 4:45 p. m.—Scrub clothes.
5:30 p. m.—Supper.
6:00 p. m.—Return to barracks.
During the instruction periods, one hour each day was given over to academic studies, one hour to Swedish exercises, and another hour to seamanship or ordnance instruction. In the factory drill usually filled out the remaining periods. Each man has to qualify in target practice, and must also learn to point a sub-caliber rifle before he is sent into the regular service. He must also pass examinations in certain studies and must pass a swimming test.
After a period of four months of this training several companies of the recruits at that station received orders to be ready for sea the following day. Accordingly the men rolled up their clothes and stored all their effects in their canvas duffle bags and prepared to leave the station on a special train.
Mr. Tallard was assigned to the battleship Vermont, which at the time was stationed at the Norfolk Navy Yard. After three long days and nights of travel we arrived at Newport News, Virginia, at one o'clock in the morning. We were met by a government tug and ferried across the bay to our ship. By the time we had mustered and arrived on board it was two o'clock in the morning, and the following morning, however, we all had good baths and felt ready to go to work. All that day we spent in an investigation of the ship, learning to remember the names of the different places and pieces of equipment. On the following day I reported to the chief engineer, and was assigned to the task of washing down paint. This continued for one week.
"Soon afterwards we left the navy yard for a short speed run to the southern drill grounds, and during the course of the month made short cruises to accustom the men to open sea cruising. That summer we spent with the fleet off Block Island, Newport, Rhode Island, making part of the war games, which lasted for nearly two weeks. We were with the whining Blue fleet.
"Soon after this we were ordered to the Philadelphia yard for repairs, but because the force there could not handle the amount of work on hand, we came down to Port au Prince, Haiti, for duty in these waters. We left the navy yard at Philadelphia, November 21st, at seven o'clock in the morning, with our six boilers making a standard speed of ten knots; we reached the breakwater, where we dropped our Delaware river pilot about four that afternoon, and at our own choice, Charleston, South Carolina, where we were to take on a company of marines and marine supplies. We arrived there two days later, and after a day in port, cleared for Port au Prince.
"Mr. Tallard describes the island population as consisting largely of negroes, though there are a few French and Spanish settlers in the mountainous interior. The island itself is very rugged, with many small lakes and rivers. The mountains are covered with coconut trees, banana trees and various types of palms. Port au Prince, however, live in well constructed houses of concrete and stone. Nearly all of the streets are paved with granite. The stone houses and tidy business district gives the city an air of enterprise and prosperity. The street cars, though, are of a very old type, and instead of being electrically propelled, are run by small steam engines.
"Everything is cheap. Labor costs about a dollar a week, and in most cases is worth less. For instance, the slowest individual in the world. One day I went to a livery stable to hire a horse; the owner said the rental would be ten cents. For how long? "All day," he replied. "That is typical of the prices and of the life. Everything is cheap and care free, except at election time, when things are liable to become a bit excited. I was stationed at the port. We will stay until after the election to see that there are no riots and that everything is satisfactory to Uncle Sam, and then I will join the fleet again in northern waters."
SCHOOL BOARD PAYS BORROWED MONEY; REPORT FOR JANUARY IS FILED.
Janesville's educational bill for the month of January was $34,623.38, according to the report filed this morning by the city clerk, P. H. Hannan, and by S. C. Hurnham, clerk of the board of education. The largest item listed was that of $25,363.89, payment of money borrowed from the city to carry the schools through the close of 1916 and now available from the school's share of city taxes. Teachers' salaries totaled $5,519.87 for the month.

WOMAN ARRESTED AS RESORT KEEPER
Mrs. Harriet Jordan in Municipal Court Denies Charges of City Attorney and Police Chief.
Mrs. Harriet Jordan, 68 South River street, in municipal court late yesterday afternoon pleaded not guilty to charges preferred by Chief of Police Peter D. Thompson and City Attorney Charles H. Lange that she was the keeper of a disorderly house. Her case was adjourned one week.
Dinner Stories
Mr. Parrot wanted the picture hung to the right of the mirror; Mrs. Parrot wanted it hung to the left. For once he proved the more insistent of the two, and Joseph the janitor, was summoned to hang the picture according to his orders. Obediently Joseph drove in a nail on the right, as directed; this done, he also drove one in the wall on the left. "That's the sound nail for?" Mr. Parrot demanded. "It's to save me the trouble of fetching the ladder tomorrow when you come round to the missus's way of thinking," said Joseph.
A teacher from New York state was a visitor in Boston. A native guide was proudly showing the stranger the historical spots of interest. Upon seeing the tomb of Samuel Adams, the instructor was moved to unseemly mirth, much to the amazement and indignation of her pilot. Quickly catching herself, however, she apologized for her laughter and offered the following explanation: "Last term I was teaching a grade of sixth year pupils about the continental war. One day, on the day of the day, came for examination on the subject I found, in writing the questions on the blackboard, that space was limited. So I abbreviated the name of the patriot. The question read: 'In what zones does S. A. lie?' 'That night, in marking the papers, this startling answer confronted me: 'Samuel Adams lies in the Torrid Zone!'"
"No," remarked the determined lady to the indignant taxi driver who had received his exact fare, "you cannot cheat me. I haven't ridden in cabs for the last twenty-five years for nothing."
"Haven't you?" he retorted bitterly. "Well, you've done your best."

Friday's Markets.
Chicago, Feb. 3.—The hog market was in process of readjustment yesterday after Thursday's sharp drop. Receipts were light, being curtailed here and elsewhere by the cold snap, but 10,000 holdovers were in the pens. After a delayed start the market got under headways at 10.65c advanced over Thursday's late trade and the close was strong at the advance. The bulk sold at 11.60@11.80, the top being 11.95.
A healthy market was had for good cattle.
The sheep and lamb supply was of famine proportions and the market active and mostly 10c higher. Best fed western lambs reached 14.45 and natives 14.50, both new yard records.
Good Beef Cattle Firm.
There were few cattle anywhere yesterday. Demand centered on beef and qualified classes sold up to the week's best prices, but common stuff was slow and stocker and feeder trade in a frozen-out finish, and common to medium light steers have declined 1c. @25c this week, steers good enough to sell at $11 up are closing at the high point of the year. Unless the weather moderates a light run early next week is certain. Veal calves sold at 12.00@12.50, a fancy class up to $11.
Quotations:
Choice to fancy steers 11.50@12.10
Poor to good steers 8.40@11.75
Feathered, 10c to fancy 11.75

Poor to fancy veal calves 10.00@14.00
Few Hogs Reach Market.
Only 15,000 hogs reached Chicago yesterday, and of these 3,500 were offered to packers. The market awaited the opening of the provision trade and when the pit market came higher sellers had little difficulty negotiating 10c@15c advances over Thursday's close. The close was strong at the advance. Some light and medium mixed hogs sold at 11.50@11.65, the bulk of entire supply at 11.60@11.80, with an 11.35 top. Owing to the fact that eleven points had only 48,000 hogs, against 123,000 the same day last week. Quotations:
Bulk of sales 11.60@11.80
Heavy butchers and ship 11.75@11.95

Stags, 50 lbs. dockage per head 11.75@12.25

Subzero temperatures kept the supply of live quotations and a 10c@17c advance resulted, although Chicago prices have been relatively higher all week than eastern markets. Four decks of 84-lb western lambs sold at $14.65, that cost $2.25 laid down in their Indiana feed lot last fall, and the bulk of the fat lambs sold at 14.29@14.50. Yearlings of 92 lbs. reached $13.50, a new high spot for the weight, and a price heavy native ewes sold up to $11 for another new record. Quotations:

FOREIGN POWERS WATCHING AMERICAN LOAN TO CHINA
Peking, Feb. 3.—Foreign powers interested in China and her riches to-day are turning watchful eyes toward America and her recent tender to take a hand in the financing of the Celestial republic. This has been illustrated by the action of the Four-Power-Loan-Group—Germany, England, France and the United States—who longer considered a member addressing an inquiry to the Chinese Department of Finance concerning the new American loan, concluded with the Continental Commercial Bank of Chicago.
From information now available it appears that the advance of $5,000,000 already announced is a part of a loan of $30,000,000, from which the $5,000,000 will be deducted if the larger loan is concluded. Otherwise the $5,000,000 loan is to be repaid in three years. The loan will bear 6 per cent interest, will be issued at 97 1/2 and will be secured by wine and tobacco taxes. It has already passed the House of Representatives here.

In the Land of the Czar

A STORY OF RASPUTIN.

(By Paul Holmes.)

Chapter Four.

as the man snapped his finger. "So much," Rasputin muttered, "so much for the life of Francois L'Verne."

In Russia no one is safe. A man's best friend is the paid agent of some one else. Lifelong acquaintances are the spies of another political faction. No man can trust another. No man can tell who will hear the confidential words he pours into the ear of a trusted friend. In the service of men of high office are spies sent by other men of high office. The czar trusted Boris Sturmer, and Boris Sturmer was working for German interests, body and soul. Also, the czar trusted Rasputin, but he had no choice there.

But in the case of Sturmer, trusted traitor that he was, he trusted another, and that other was a spy of Prince Usipoff, leader of the true Russian faction at Petrograd. And Usipoff trusted no one. In that way he outwitted Sturmer. What Usipoff knew, he alone knew, and that was the secret of his success.

Usipoff's spy in the service of Sturmer was named Franz Wiesbaden. And it happened that scarcely an hour after Boris Sturmer dispatched orders for the guarding of the train, Prince Usipoff, in consultation with the eminent statesman, Alexander Trepoff, knew of the orders, and knew also the contents of the three telegrams which Sturmer had laid before Rasputin.

And so the state of affairs lay thus: Rasputin and Sturmer knew that L'Verne was on his way to Russia with valuable documents which were of an injurious nature to themselves. And Prince Usipoff, to whom one of the messages was addressed, knew it also—but he also knew that Rasputin and Sturmer were aware of it. He knew that they would make any effort to make way with the envoy, and he was ready to make any effort to see that he arrived safely in Petrograd. And Rasputin might have suspected, but he did not know that Usipoff had that knowledge.

So Rasputin watched L'Verne, and Usipoff watched Rasputin. Only L'Verne himself did not know. He stepped peacefully aboard the "Prince of Wales," while that vessel plied its way about the tip of Denmark into the Baltic Sea. And even here his life was not safe, for there was a spy aboard the ship, who waited his time to strike.

There were spies and secret agents everywhere. The life of one who dared to meddle with the intricacies of diplomatic Russia was not worth the snap of the finger by which Rasputin had just signed the youth's death warrant.

This procedure will not only guarantee the sacred treatment and historical and chronological correctness of the story, but will also insure an entire into the churches, Y. M. C. and another was found for Chaplin.

"Twin Kiddies" is the new play featuring little Marie Osborne (Mary Sunshine). In this picture the little star plays two distinct parts. One is a child loving, happy, though poor, and the other shows a rich, peevish youngster. Ought to be a good child's picture.

"Billie" Rhodes is rehearsing a photoplay in which she wears male attire, long mustaches, and a derby hat and two revolvers.

Madge Kennedy, favorite on Broadway, has recently taken two important steps. One was to get married—she is now the wife of Harold Bolster, business manager of a big film company—and the other was to sign a contract to go into moving pictures. As soon as her present season on Broadway is over she will act before the camera.

Born in California about twenty-four years ago, Miss Kennedy has been on the stage five or six years and has been a star throughout the best part of her career. She went to New York to study art and enrolled at the Art Students' League, but changed her ambitions after appearing in amateur theatricals in a sum-mer colony in New England. Henry Woodruff told her she had talent and should be on the stage. She appeared in his company on the road and then made her New York debut in "Little Miss Brown" at the Forty-eighth Street theater under the management of William A. Brady. Her greatest popular hits have been in "Twin Beds" and "Fair and Warner."

IT DIDN'T WORK.
George Beban, noted delineator of Italian roles, is working on a picture that necessitates the presence of a Venus clad in the conventional garb of nothingness. January never was an inviting month for Venuses. Beban attempted to defeat the cold by placing a small stove inside the pedestal on which Venus was to pose. Which was done without taking the young lady into confidence.

It is said the young lady's feet may get over it, but that they will never look the same.

MISS MAYO IS MOVIE WRITER.

As surprising as it may seem, some of the moving picture producers actually pay some attention to the character of their literary departments. For instance, one company has signed Margaret Mayo to supervise its scenarios. Surely you know Margaret! She is the author of "Polly of the Circus," "Twin Beds" and that highly hilarious "Baby Mine." An additional distinction is hers in that she doesn't get her laughs out of custard pies.

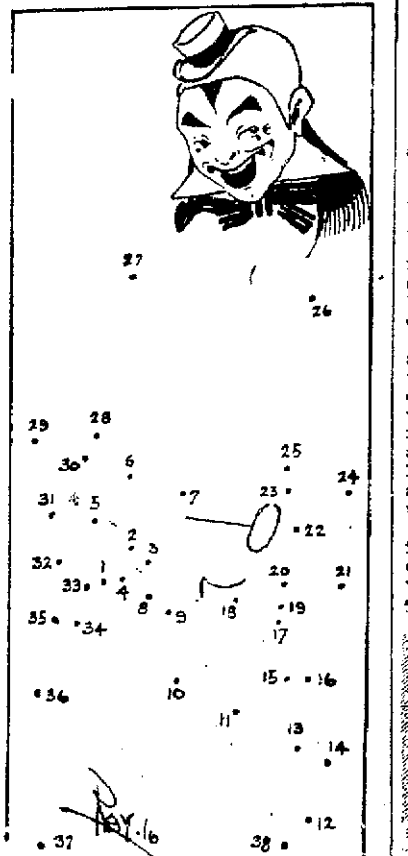

Herbert Brenon, report has it, is about to leave Mr. Selznick. The fact that "War Brides" and Florence Reed's "Eternal Sin" cost many hundreds of thousands of dollars is supposed to have something to do with the dissolving of partnership.

Ann Sutherland, noted character actress, will appear in support of Marjorie Rambeau in "Motherhood." Miss Sutherland has always been a credit to the stage and will, no doubt, be a valuable screen asset.

Kitty Gordon's daddy was a general in the English army during the Sepoy mutiny.

THE AMERICAN APHRODITE COMING TO MILWAUKEE

There will be shown at the Davidson theater, Milwaukee, next week, beginning Sunday afternoon, the screen masterpiece which has taken New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh by storm, William Fox's picture beautiful, "A Daughter of the Gods," so far surpasses any feature of any description that has been before the public that it marks an art and beauty epoch in the progress of the cinema. It is in its entirety a thing of such exquisite beauty that everyone should see it. A story of fiction, fantasy and fairy-tale, tremendous in its scope and scenic possibilities, it embraces in its unfoldment not only the loveliest water nymphs of the western hemisphere, but the most ideal natural settings. The far-east city, the sultan's palace, interior and exterior, the reproduction of medieval battles are done to the life, so well done, in fact, that they cost William Fox a million real American dollars in the doing.

Annette Kellermann, who created the star role, has no misnomer in "A Daughter of the Gods," for she is called literally "The American Aphrodite," but, whereas her Greek predecessor only arose from the sea, Miss Kellermann not only arises from it in all her amazing loveliness, but undergoes such a series of adventures and hazards as baffle description. She is unceded by critics of the feminine form, to be the most admirably developed and perfectly proportioned woman in the world.

TO KEEP PAROLED PRISONERS FROM SERVING TERMS

Washington, Feb. 3.—Representative Scott of Pennsylvania in a resolution in Congress today asked the federal judges be given power to suspend sentences of persons convicted of crime.

The measure was prompted by a recent supreme court decision in which it was held that judges do not have this power. Scott's bill would eliminate the danger now facing many paroled persons of a return to prison to serve out sentences never enforced.

Nan of Music Mountain

By
FRANK H. SPEARMAN
Author of "WHISPERING SMITH"

(Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons)

What was stage traffic to him compared to the sunshine on Nan's hair; what attraction had schedules to offer against a moment of her eyes; what pleasing connection could there be between hubbub and wheels and her low laugh?

The two felt they must meet to discuss their constant perplexities and the problems of their difficult situation; but when they reached their respective places, there was more of gaiety than gravity, more of nonchalance than concern, more of looking into each other's hearts than looking into the troublesome future. And there was hardly an inviting spot within miles of Music Mountain that one or the other of the two had not waited near.

There were, of course, disappointments, but there were only a few failures in their arrangements. The difficulties of those fell chiefly on Nan. How she overcame them was a source of surprise to De Spain, who marveled at her innocent resource in escaping the demands at home and making her way, despite an array of obstacles, to his distant impatience.

Midway between Music Mountain and Sleepy Cat a low-lying wall of lava rock, in part sand-covered and in part exposed, parallels and sometimes crosses the principal trail. This undulating ridge was a favorite with De Spain and Nan, because they could slide in and out of hiding places without more than just leaving the trail itself. To the west of this ridge, and commanding it, rose rather more than a mile away the cone called Black Cap.

"Suppose," said Nan one afternoon, looking from De Spain's side toward the mountains, "someone should be spying on us from Black Cap?" She pointed to the solitary rock.

"If anyone has been, Nan, with a good glass he must have seen exchanges of confidence that would make him gnash his teeth. I know if I ever saw anything like it I'd go bang. But the country around there is too rough for a horse. Nobody even lides around Black Cap, except some tramp hold-up men that's crowded in his getaway. Bob Scott says there are dozens of mountain lions over there."

But Sassoon had the unpleasant patience of a mountain lion and its dog-gone persistence, and hiding himself on Black Cap, he made certain one day of what he had long been convinced—that Nan was meeting De Spain.

The day after she had mentioned Black Cap to her lover, Nan rode over to Calabasas to get a horse named, Galloping back, she encountered Sassoon just inside the gap. Nan so detested him that she never spoke when she could avoid it. On his part, he pretended not to see her as she passed. When she reached home she found her Uncle Duke and Gale standing in front of the fireplace in the living room. The two appeared from their manner to have been in a heated discussion, one that had stopped suddenly on her appearance. Both looked at Nan. The expression on their faces forewarned her. She threw her quilt over the table, drew off her riding gloves, and began to unpin her hat; but she knew a storm was impending.

"Gale had been made for a long time to know that he was an unwelcome visitor, and Nan's greeting of him was the most contemptuous nod. "Well, uncle," she said, glancing at Duke. "I'm late again. Have you had supper?"

Duke always spoke curtly; tonight his heavy voice was as sharp as an ax. "Been late a good deal lately."

Nan laid her hat on the table, and, glancing composedly from one suspicious face to the other, put her hands up to arrange her hair. "I'm going to try to do better. I'll go and get my supper if you've had yours." She started toward the dining room.

"Hold on!" Nan paused at her uncle's ferocious command. She looked at him either really or feigningly surprised, her expression changing to one of indignation, and waited for him to speak. Since he did no more than glare angrily at her, Nan lifted her brows a little. "What do you want, uncle?"

"Where did you go this afternoon?" "Over to Calabasas," she answered innocently.

"Who'd you meet there?" Duke's tone snapped with anger. He was working himself into a fury, but Nan saw it must be faced. "The same people I usually meet—why?"

"Did you meet Henry de Spain there this afternoon?" Nan looked squarely at her cousin and returned his triumphant expression defiantly before she turned her eyes on her uncle. "No," she said collectedly. "Why?"

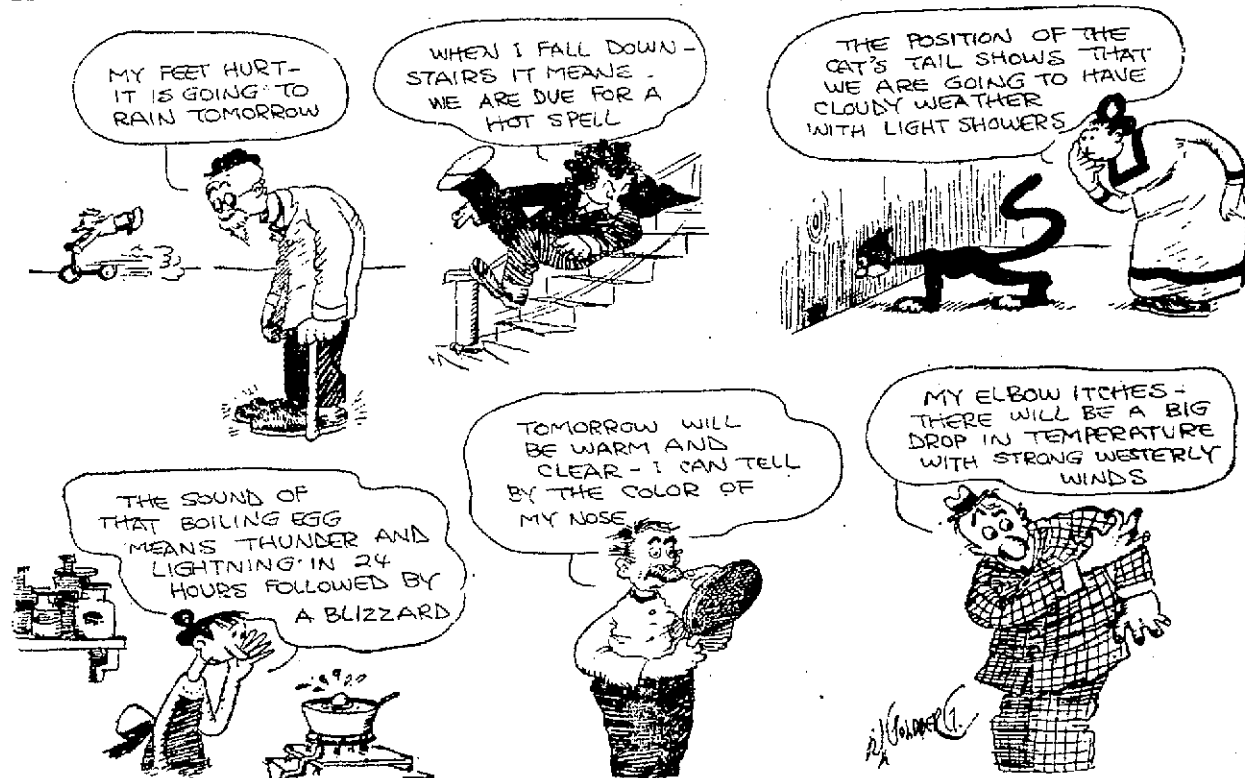

"See him anywhere else?" "No, I did not. What do you mean?" "What?" demanded his niece with spirit. "do you want to know? What are you trying to find out?"

Duke turned in his rage on Gale. "There! You hear that—what have you got to say now?" he demanded with an abusive oath.

Gale jumped forward, his finger pointed at Nan. "Look here, do you deny you are meeting Henry de Spain all over the desert? You met him down the Sleepy Cat trail near Black Cap, didn't you?"

Nan stood with her back against the end of the table where her uncle's first words had stopped her, and she looked sideways toward her cousin. In her answer he heard as much contempt as a girl's voice could convey to a rejected lover. "So you've turned sneaky!"

Gale roared a string of bad words. "You dare that coyote Sassoon to spy for you, do you?" demanded Nan coolly. "Aren't you proud of your manly relation, uncle?" Duke was choking with rage. He tried to speak to her, but he could not form his words. "What do you want to know, uncle?"

"Whether it is true that I meet Henry de Spain? It is. I do meet him, and we're engaged to be married when you give us permission, Uncle Duke—and not till then."

"There you have it," cried Gale. "There's the story. I told you so. I've known it for a week, I tell you." Nan's face set. "Not only," continued her cousin jeeringly, "meeting that—"

Almost before the vile epithet that followed had reached her ears, Nan caught up the whip. Before he could escape, she cut Gale sharply across the face. "You coward," she cried, trembling so she could not control her voice. "If you ever dare use that word before me again, I'll horsewhip you."

"You Coward!" She cried.

Go to Henry de Spain's face, you skulker, and say that if you dare."

"Put down that quilt, Nan," yelled her uncle.

"I won't put it down," she exclaimed defiantly. "And he will get a good lashing with it if he says one more word about Henry de Spain."

"Put down that quilt, I tell you," thundered her uncle.

She whirled. "I won't put it down. This hulking bully! I know him better than you do." She pointed a quivering finger at her cousin. "He insulted me as vilely as he could only a few months ago on Music Mountain. And if this very same Henry de Spain hadn't happened to be there to protect me, you would have found me dead next morning by my own hand. Do you understand?" she cried, panting and furious. "That's what he is!"

Her uncle tried to break in. "Stop!" she exclaimed pointing at Gale. "He never told you that, did he?"

"No, nor you neither," snapped Duke hoarsely.

"I didn't tell you," retorted Nan, "because I've been trying to live with you here in peace among these thieves and cutthroats, and not keep you stirred up all the time. And Henry de Spain faced this big coward and protected me from him with an empty revolver! What business of yours is it whom I meet, or where I go?"

She demanded, raising her words with flaming eyes on her belligerent cousin. "I will never marry you to save you from the hangman. Now leave this house." She stamped her foot. "Leave this house, and never come into it again!"

Gale, beside himself with rage, stood his ground. He poured all that he safely could of abuse on Nan's own head. She had appealed her wrath and made no attempt to report, only looking at him with white face and burning eyes as she breathed defiance. Duke interposed. "Get out!" he said to Gale harshly. "I'll talk to her. Go home!"

Not ceasing to mutter oaths, Gale picked up his hat and stamped out of the house, slamming the doors. Duke, exhausted by the quarrel, sat down.

aying his niece. "Now what does this mean?" he demanded hoarsely.

She tried to tell him honestly and frankly all that her acquaintance with De Spain did mean—dwelling no more than was necessary on its beginning, but concealing nothing of its development and consequences, nothing of her love for De Spain, nor of his for her. But no part of what she could say on any point she urged softened her uncle's face. His square, hard jaw from beginning to end looked like stone.

"So he's your lover?" he said harshly when she had done.

"He wants to be your friend," returned Nan, determined not to give up.

Duke looked at her uncompromisingly. "That man can't ever be my friend of mine—understand that! He can't ever marry you. If he ever tries to, so help me God, I'll kill him if I hang for it. I know his game. I know what he wants. He doesn't care a pinch of snuff for you. He thinks he can hit me a blow by getting you away from me."

"Nothing could be further from the truth," exclaimed Nan hopelessly.

Duke struck the table a smashing blow with his fist. "I'll show Mr. de Spain and his friends where they get off."

"Uncle Duke, if you won't listen to reason, you must listen to sense. Think of what a position you put me in. I love you for all your care of me. I love him for his affection for me and consideration of me—because he knows how to treat a woman. I know he wouldn't harm a hair on your head, for my sake, yet you talk now of bloodshed between you two. I know what your words mean—that one of you, or both of you, are to be killed for a senseless feud. He will not stand up and let any man shoot him down without resistance. If you lay your blood on his head, you know it would put a stain between him and me that never could be washed out as long as we lived. If you kill him I could never stay here with you. His blood would cry out every day and night against you."

Duke's violent finger shot out at her. "And you're the gal I took from your ma and promised I'd bring up a decent woman. You've got none of her blood in you—not a drop. You're the brat of that mind-brother of mine, that was always riding horseback and showing off in town while I was weeding the tobacco beds."

Nan clasped her hands. "Don't blame me because I'm your brother's child. Blame me because I'm a woman, because I have a heart, because I want to live and see you live, and to see suspicion, distrust, feuds, alarms, and worse. I'm not ungrateful, as you plainly say I am. I want you to get out of what you are in here—I want to be out of it. I'd rather be dead now than to live and die in it. And what is this anger all for? Nothing. He offers you his friendship." She could speak no further. Her uncle, with a curse, left her alone. When she arose in the early morning he had already gone away.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Try-Out.

Sleepy Cat is not so large a place that one would ordinarily have much trouble in finding a man in it if he searched well. But Duke Morgan drove into town next morning and had to stay for three days waiting for a chance to meet De Spain. Duke was not a man to talk much when he had anything of moment to put through, and he had left home determined, before he came back, to finish for good with his enemy.

De Spain himself had been putting off for weeks every business that would bear putting off, and had been forced at length to run down to Medicine Bend to buy horses. Nan, after her uncle left home—justly apprehensive of his intentions—made frantic efforts to get word to De Spain of what was impending. She could not telegraph—a publicity that she dreaded would have followed at once. De Spain had expected to be back in two days. Such a letter as she could have sent would not reach him at Medicine Bend.

As it was, a distressing amount of talk did attend Duke's efforts to get track of De Spain. Sleepy Cat had but one interpretation for his inquiries—and a fight, if one occurred between these men, it was conceded, would be historic in the annals of the town. Its anticipation was food for all of the rumors of three days of suspense. For the town they were three days of thrilling expectation; for Nan, isolated, without a confidant, not knowing what to do or which way to turn, they were the three bitterest days of anxiety she had ever known.

Desperate with suspense at the close of the second day—wild for a scrap of news, yet dreading one—she saddled her pony and rode alone into Sleepy Cat after nightfall to meet the train on which De Spain had told her he would return from the east. She rode straight to the hospital, instead of going to the livery barn, and leaving her horse, got supper and walked by way of unfrequented streets downtown to the station to wait for the train.

"HOME OF CHARACTER" No. 170—A

A Picturesque Six-Room House—By John Henry Newson
This house is an inexpensive but artistic home and one that bespeaks refinement and picturesque. The general color scheme is brown and white, while the roof is in black slate. The porch columns are carried out in a very light manner with neatly cut corbels under the beams supporting the porch roof. The upper story is in shingles and the lower story is ordinary lap siding.

The floor plan is a more elaborate arrangement than the average six-room house. ## U. S. RECALLS GERARD; PASSPORTS TO BERNSTORFF

Washington, Feb., 3—Diplomatic relations with Germany have been broken. Count Von Bernstorff has been handed his passports, and Ambassador Gerard has been ordered from Berlin. Notice of the break is to be outlined in a detailed address, which President Wilson will deliver to a joint session of Congress at two this afternoon. In spite of the fact that this became known definitely, officials at the White House and state department would not discuss the situation in any form.

Whether the break with Germany would be accompanied by a similar break with Austria-Hungary, could not be learned definitely inasmuch as Austria is understood to have endorsed the action of Germany, however, this action is expected to follow if it has not already been taken.

German Envoy To Quit Washington

AMBASSADOR VON BERNSTORFF.

The state department notified Ambassador Gerard to ask for his passports.

The decision to break was reached after the President's conferences with the cabinet and members of the senate yesterday. The President by those conferences came to the conclusion that the country would stand solidly behind him in breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany.

The president completed his message to congress early this morning, and arrangements for his appearance were immediately made.

The break in diplomatic relations is taken to mean that the United States must ally itself with the entente powers of Europe or take the risk of disaster. This is the opinion of persons who have made a close study of such a possibility.

A break in diplomatic relations is a procedure preliminary to or coincident with war. Russia broke relations with Japan and Japan began torpedoing Russian battleships. A break puts the next move in the other nation's hands. German submarines are thought to be in American Atlantic waters. Admiral Mayo might find them in his fleet in Guantanamo.

First Move.

Newport News, Va., Feb. 3.—The revenue cutter Yamacraw steamed along side the German prize steamer Appam and it is understood that the German prize crew will be removed.

The super-dreadnaught Arkansas has been reinforced off the Virginia Capes by two torpedo boat destroyers.

FOREIGN POWERS WATCHING AMERICAN LOAN TO CHINA

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Peking, Feb. 3.—Foreign powers interested in China and her riches to-day are turning watchful eyes toward America and her recent tendency to take a hand in the financing of the Celestial republic. This has just been illustrated by the action of the Four-Power Loan Group—Germany, France, England and the United States—who have just considered a member—in discussing an inquiry to the Chinese government of Finance concerning the new American loan, concluded the Continental Commercial Bank of Chicago.

From information now available it appears that the advance of $5,000,000 already announced is a part of a loan of $30,000,000, from which the $5,000,000 will be deducted if the larger loan is concluded. Otherwise the $5,000,000 loan will be repaid in three years.

The loan will bear 6 per cent interest, will be issued at 97 1/2 and will be secured by wine and tobacco taxes. It has already passed the House of Representatives here.

SEEK TO MAKE AMERICAN LABORER DISTINCTIVELY AMERICAN BY EDUCATION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Feb. 3.—A campaign to Americanize the American laborer by education, all for-profit employers in American industry and commerce was started to-day at the opening of the National Conference on Americanization at the University of Chicago.

Dr. P. P. Claxton, U. S. Commissioner of Education, called the meeting to order and explained the plan of education of the U. S. Bureau of Education. The National Committee of One Hundred and United States Chamber of Commerce.

FOG BELLS TO GUIDE TOURISTS IN COBRADO MOUNTAINS

Denver, Colo., Feb. 3.—Fog bells, another touch of the atmosphere of the Swiss Alps, are to be placed in the Rocky Mountain National Park to guide the traveler during the times when mountain top and clouds meet and there comes a mist that hides the peaks and is liable to bring down the traveler at what are considered the most dangerous points of the park territory.

WAR SCARE HAS AN EFFECT ON MARKETS DURING THE WEEK

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Prospects of a severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany together with other possible consequences of Germany's notice of sea war without limit, overshadowed all other influences during the week in the wheat market. The result on prices had been a setback ranging from four and one-eighth to twenty and five-eighths cents a bushel. Corn lost four cents to five and one-eighth and five and one-quarter. Oats three and one-half to five and one-quarter cents, and provisions seventeen cents to $1.65.

Biggest breaks in wheat took place in the first minutes of trading, after announcement of Germany's new sea program. The selling panic at this juncture, caused a sheer descent of fifteen and one-quarter cents, but the market was virtually over within half an hour, notwithstanding that the tension in the pit at the outset had seldom been equalled on "change in Chicago."

CARRANZA LEAVES THE PRESIDENTIAL CHAIR AT HOME FOR THE FIRST TIME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Ciudad Juarez, Chih., Mex., Feb. 3.—For the first time since he seized the power as First Chief, Carranza has left the presidential chair in Mexico City. In his numerous journeys over the country he has always carried the "phantom chair" with him. When he came to Queretaro to attend the constitutional convention now in session he left the chair in the palace.

As the symbol of power the chair has a romantic history. Out of the turmoil of bloody revolutions eleven men have sat in the chair. One was assassinated, two died in foreign lands, and most of the others are in exile.

At one time Pedro Lascurain occupied the chair as president for forty-five minutes. He was forced from the throne by Huerta.

The chair is simply unadorned in recent supreme court decision in which it was held that judges do not have this power. Scott's bill would eliminate the danger now facing many paroled persons of a return to prison to serve out sentences never enforced.

TO KEEP PAROLED PRISONERS FROM SERVING TERMS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Feb. 3.—Representative Scott of Pennsylvania in a resolution in Congress today asked that federal judges be given power to suspend sentences of persons convicted of crime.

The measure was prompted by a recent supreme court decision in which it was held that judges do not have this power. Scott's bill would eliminate the danger now facing many paroled persons of a return to prison to serve out sentences never enforced.

ARGENTINA WOULD TAX ALL EXPORTS TO AID FARMER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Feb. 3.—A five per cent ad valorem tax on all produce exported from the Argentine is proposed by the new radical government in one of several important measures which Congress will consider in the extraordinary session just convened. The object of the bill is to obtain money for road-building and see-purchasing in the interests of the agriculturalists in many parts of the country. If passed, the law would become effective immediately, and its provisions terminate on March 31, 1918. It is estimated that the tax by that time would have netted $50,000,000 paper.

A colonization bill is another of the new government's proposals. The attention of congress is called to the fact that primitive and inadequate agricultural methods are employed widely in the Argentine and it is asked to approve of the establishment of colonies in various parts of the country by the sale of government lands on easy terms and by the loan of money to enable the colonist to equip and run his farm during the first season. The proposed law is modeled on one in force in New Zealand.

A third measure proposed is the authorization of a bond issue of $100,000,000 paper, the proceeds of which would be employed in exploiting the resources of the country, particularly by the establishment of an agricultural bank and the development of a national mercantile merchant marine, and the exploitation of the petroleum wells at Comodoro Rivadavia.

The budget, and a proposal for a loan of $250,000,000 gold, in order to cover various short-time loans which the Argentine has contracted during the last two years, conclude the government's program, which is regarded as particularly interesting since it is the first time that the radical party has had a chance to come forward with legislation. Even now the opposition parties really control the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and the Radicals will find it necessary to obtain the support of one of the other parties. The Socialists, nine in number, hold the balance of power in the lower house, and it is said that the government's export tax and colonization bills, especially, are assured of firm support by the Socialists.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE PREDICTS A DRY UNITED STATES BY 1918

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, Feb. 3.—That the entire United States will be voted dry by the end of 1917 was predicted here today by the Anti-Saloon League of America. The claim is based on the following:

Pending dry legislation, will be passed at the present session of congress, as a result of the "united front" of public sentiment in favor of it," and the 129 new House of Representatives members will swell the ranks of the 1917 members of the House who favored the Hobson National Prohibition bill.

Many of them, it is pointed out, have been elected from states which have recently "gone dry" or have declared their intention of doing so. Virginia, Arkansas, Iowa, Nebraska and Michigan have adopted prohibition laws since the vote was taken in congress on the Hobson Constitutional amendment bill.

"It is reasonable to assume the movement will have all of the congressional votes of these states—a gain of 15."

ARGENTINE PRESIDENT SAYS HE'LL BREAK LAW IF NECESSARY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Buenos Aires, Feb. 3.—Orthodox people in Argentina are terribly shocked at a threat attributed to Dr. Irigoyen, the president, to treat the law under certain circumstances.

The doctor came into office with numerous reform schemes in mind. Since then, nearly as often as he has referred to the law, he has pointed out to him that he can do nothing with the plan because it runs counter to existing legislation. Finally he is quoted as having said impressively: "Any time I find I can't do something which ought to be done in the public interest without breaking the law, I'll break the law."

SUPERIOR MAN BOOSTS FOR PRISON UP-STATE

Superior, Wis., Feb. 3.—That the thousands of dollars spent by Wisconsin counties annually to send prisoners to the state penitentiary at Waupun could be saved if a prison were established in the northern section of the state was the claim made by James E. Bardon of Superior, recently. Prisoners could then be don said, in the district, where much construction is needed.

JOHN BULL SAVES MILLION A MONTH ON TOMMY'S SHOES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

With the British Allies in the Field, Feb. 3.—What becomes of the millions and millions of shoes worn by the British Armies. Tommy must be reshoed every two months.

England's shoe bill is millions of dollars a month and anything which can double the life of a shoe means an enormous saving to the government.

Out here there is an institution which comes pretty nearly doubling Mr. Boot's life. I have just been through it. Scores of thousands of shoes in cracker-sacks were being unloaded from freight cars on a siding and the officer commanding said he had to get these clear so another lot of 250,000 more could have the space commencing next day.

For each million soldiers in the British Armies, say a million pairs of shoes are issued about every two months. Estimating the cost per pair at three dollars, the total would be $3,000,000. Instead of repairing these boots, new ones were issued, this would mean $3,000,000 worth of boots every two months for each soldier. The repairs cost considerably less than a dollar per pair, therefore the economy realized by the shops is over $2,000,000 each two months, or $4,000,000 over a million dollars every 30 days.

First the shoes are sorted out, according to the three sizes in the army, cleaned of mud and dirt, then inspected to see whether they can be mended. If not, their tops become shoe laces and the remains of the carcasses, turned in to the boiler-furnace, help the wheels which which their cold brothers into new boots.

Boots successfully by their first inspection, pass on to others, for heel, sole, steel studs and other wear proofing.

Finally the boot with all necessary materials arrives at the machine, frequently American-made machines, which is mated on in about five seconds the nails automatically brading inside. The sewing is done about as quickly but nailed soles are able to stand the wear and tear of the marches.

Now the lasts are taken out and the boots go to the oilers where they are put bodily into a vat of oil and liquid grease and left for about 10 minutes this work being done by women who receive higher wages than ordinary workwomen on account of the unpleasant nature of their tasks.

The boots are now as good as new. They are ready for another two months hard wear.

SCANDINAVIA COUNTRIES TO ISSUE IRON COINS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Stockholm, Feb. 3.—An issue of iron coins is expected in Sweden according to the manager of the Swedish State bank. The matter has been the subject of discussion and agreement between the three Scandinavian countries.

KAISER'S GOLD GIFTS TO COUNTRY'S MELTING POT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Berlin, Feb. 3.—Emperor William has donated to the "Gold Purchase Bureau" which is buying all the gold jewelry in the nation, the Kaiser's own gold gifts to the nation, which are worth about $25,000.

The list includes a handsome yachting cup donated a few years ago by a wealthy American, a Kiel Regatta racing trophy and which the Kaiser won a heavy gold case presented to His Majesty by an Eastern potentate, and a 30-inch-high top cup or vase, which is the gift of a German financier.

MEXICO TO PROTECT LABOR AWAY FROM HOME

Mexico City, Feb. 3.—To assure the protection and well being of Mexican laborers in foreign countries, an order has been issued by the "First Chief," General Carranza, providing that before laborers seeking to contract their services in foreign countries are allowed to depart, such contracts must be submitted to the labor department of the government for consent of the country to which they desire to go. In order for such contracts to be approved they must show that the laborers will be given proper guarantees and that their rights will be protected and that the government of the country to which they go will give them the said aid and protection accorded them at home.

ENGLISH BANKRUPTANCIES DECREASE DURING YEAR

London, Feb. 3.—Statistics published for the past year show that there has been a decrease in business failures in the United Kingdom of 1,677 as compared with 1915.

ORDER SHIPS TO SAIL ON SCHEDULES

New York, Feb. 3.—The first passenger steamers to leave this port since the declaration of the new German blockade are booked to sail to-day. They are the Carmania of the Cunard line, the Adriatic of the White Star line and the St. Louis of the American line. Agents of the two British lines announced there would be no change in their sailing plans.

Expected Delay.

It was expected that the American liner would remain at her dock owing to the opinion expressed by Secretary Lansing of the state department that European sailings of all ships flying the American flag should be postponed pending the government decision in the recent international crisis.

Few Cancellations.

Passage on the St. Louis has been booked by 250 persons, and only fifteen cancellations have been received up to this morning. A large number of these passengers are American citizens. The Carmania will carry about twenty passengers. The Adriatic has seventeen passengers in her first cabin, nine in her second, and seven in the third.

Increase Guard.

The New York harbor guard has increased its vigilance. Collector of Customs Malone now has 1,200 men assigned to this duty. In addition to co-operation of navy destroyers stationed at the Narrows, he has under his command the harbor police boat and four tugs of coast guard cutter service.

Delays One Day.

The International Mercantile Marine announced today the postponement of the sailing of the American Line steamship St. Louis, from noon today until noon Sunday, "on account of a shortage of steam coal."

Returns to Port.

Amsterdam, via London, Feb. 3.—The Handelsblad said that the Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which was on her way to America, and has been recalled by wireless, arrived off the Hook of Holland this morning.

LONDON CRIMINAL EXPERT KNEW UNDERWORLD BEST.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, Feb. 3.—John Mulvaney, superintendent of the Whitechapel division of the London police, who has just died at the London Hospital, was known as the "Father of the Force."

Probably no man knew so much of the inner criminal life of London. He took a leading part in the investigation of many celebrated crimes during his fifty years with the force.
